THE SPECIFIC NEEDS OF MATURE SKIN

As the years go by, the skin experiences changes linked to cellular ageing! The first signs of ageing appear around the age of 20. By the age of 45, wrinkles have set in and the face has changed: mature skin no longer has the same needs.

Hormonal fluctuations, heredity, stress, air pollution, smoking, diet, use of unsuitable cosmetics... around the age of 40, the skin undergoes biological changes linked to age and the environment. Cell renewal slows down, causing the epidermis to sag. The result: wrinkles deepen, creases appear and pigmentation spots increase.

To prevent and slow down this ageing phenomenon, mature skin has specific needs:

HYDRATION

When skin reaches the age of 40-50, moisturizing is more important than ever. Why? Because, as a result of menopause and maturity, skin becomes drier and thinner, collagen production is almost non-existent, facial wrinkles are more noticeable and the dreaded spots appear. Regular moisturizing is essential: skin needs to regain its comfort and suppleness.

CELL RENEWAL

Every day, our skin renews itself. After the age of 50 and the estrogen deficiency associated with the menopause, the mother cells - the source of skin's youthfulness - have more difficulty fulfilling their regenerative role. Cells function less well, leading to thinning of the epidermis. Skin becomes more fragile, thinner and drier. The epidermis must be strengthened to revitalize skin cell regeneration.

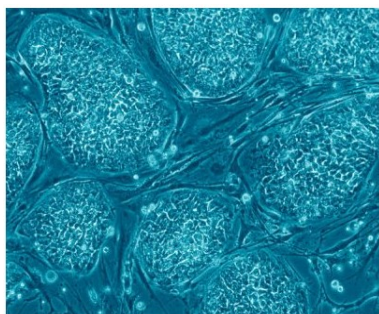

COLLAGEN PRODUCTION

Collagen fibers are an essential component of the skin. They are responsible for its firmness and tone. A reduction in collagen and/or a change in its quality lead to the appearance of deep wrinkles and sagging skin. Collagen production must be stimulated to maintain facial firmness.

SKIN DEFENSES

One of the major causes of skin ageing is oxidative stress. Generated mainly by free radicals, this biological phenomenon damages our cell structures (DNA, membranes, proteins...). With age, an imbalance is created between the aggressions (oxidation) and the skin's defense capacities. That's why anti-oxidants play a decisive role in the fight against ageing. They are molecules that oppose free radicals and limit the harmful influence of oxidative stress.

THE INCREDIBLE PROPERTIES OF CENTELLA ASIATICA STEM CELLS

Human embryonic stem cells

The very first cells in the body, their role is to create constituent cells in the organism. They are found in bone marrow and skin. A stem cell can renew itself indefinitely, often for the entire life of the organism, by cell division, while retaining its own specific properties.

Plants also have stem cells which, depending on their environment, will differentiate to give one of the plant's parts (stem, leaf, flower, etc.).

Plant stem cells, taken from the heart of plants, are rare cells with remarkable properties.

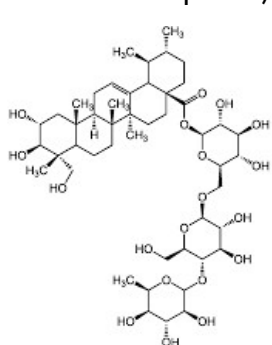

Electron microscopy of a plant stem cell

Centella Asiatica stem cells :

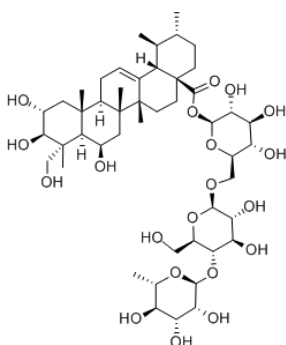

- help preserve and stimulate the natural functions of skin stem cells.
- are rich in anti-oxidants, and exceptional for fighting the formation of free radicals.
- improve skin hydration and elasticity by stabilizing hyaluronic acid levels.
- optimally protect the epidermis against external aggression.

Main active ingredients: saponosides and triterpenes

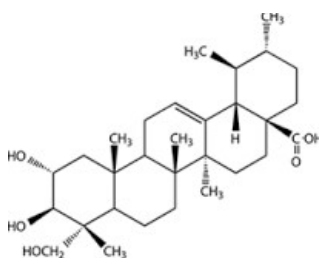

Centella Asiatica leaves are bursting with active ingredients. They contain carbohydrates, phenolic compounds (flavonoids, tannins) and triterpenes specific to this plant, known as CAST (Centella Asiatica Selected Triterpenes).

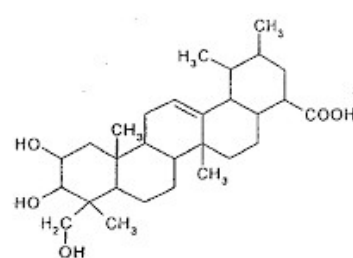

Asiaticoside

Madecassoside

Asiatic Acid

Madecassic Acid

Saponosides such as asiaticoside and madecassoside, soluble in water and extracted with a water/glycerine mixture. They have strong antioxidant properties and help increase collagen synthesis.

And triterpenes such as asiatic acid and madecassic acid have a regenerative effect on connective tissue, acting on collagen synthesis which diminishes with ageing, inducing skin ageing phenomena (loss of elasticity, appearance of wrinkles, difficulty in healing).

Scientific evidence

Professor François-Xavier Maquart (Biochemistry Laboratory, UPRESA CNRS 6021, IFR-53 Biomolecules, Reims Faculty of Medicine, France), 1990 and 1999:

- triterpenes extracted from Centella Asiatica stimulate collagen synthesis by cultures of human dermis and vein wall fibroblasts. This is one of the factors explaining the plant's favorable effect on wound healing,

- Centella Asiatica therefore stimulates collagen production, helping to repair the skin and delay cutaneous ageing, anti-aging and cellulite.

Main cosmetic properties

Anti-ageing: Stimulates collagen production, redensifies skin and smoothes wrinkles.

Repairing: repairs wounds, reduces stretch marks and acne marks.

Soothing: Reduces redness and inflammation.

Moisturizing: Reinforces the cutaneous barrier and retains water in the skin.

ORGANIC

NECK AND NECKLINE CREAM

All skin type

Ref.: 0071 – Bottle 40ml

PROPERTIES:

- Cream with 98.5% of organic ingredients
- Developed specifically for the needs of the neck and neckline
- Smooths and plumps wrinkles and fine lines
- Prevents the signs of age

Why should you use a specific cream for the neck?

The skin of the neck is twice thin than whose of the face, that's why she is close of the eye contour. She is very stressed when we turn or lower the head, but she is also submitted to external aggressions such as temperature change. However she is often neglected and reveals the signs of age. She tends to dry more easily than the skin of the face due to the low presence of sebaceous and sweat glands.

Moreover, a new wrinkle, nicknamed the « Text Neck wrinkle », is making its appearance in our ultra-connected society. This necklace wrinkle digs by having the neck leaning on smartphones and is sometimes accompanied by early appearance of a double chin.

The Centella Asiatica Stem cells: exceptional biotechnological anti-aging actif principle

The stem cells are present in our epidermis, they are the ones that reproduce by cellular division, and allow the skin to renewal herself. The number of epidermal stem cells decrease with age and their efficiency weakens.

Extracted by biotechnology, the Centella Asiatica stem cells help to preserve and boost the natural functions of the stem cells of the skin. Rich in antioxidants, they fight against the formation of free radicals. They improve also the hydration and elasticity of the skin by stabilizing the hyaluronic acid content. Then, acting in synergy with others biological actives, they protect the epidermis optimally against external aggressions.

The Sodium Hyaluronate with different molecular weight

To avoid pleated neckline, it must moisturize in depth with hyaluronic acids with different molecular weight. The one with high molecular weight has a lifting effect nearly instantaneous but disappears after fifteen minutes. That's why we associate him with hyaluronic acid with low molecular weight that goes down deeply, smooths and plumps durably the neck and the upper chest.

The Organic and Fair Sesame Oil, virgin of first cold pressure and fair, is rich in Omega 6. She regenerates and softens the skin by protecting it. Rich in antioxidant E Vitamin, she prevents the signs of age.

The Organic and Fair Hazelnut Oil penetrates very quickly, that allows to insure a non-oily touch to this cream.

The Organic Centella Asiatica Extract allows to favor the collagen synthesis and to regenerate deeply the epidermis of mature skins altered by time.

DIRECTION FOR USE:

Apply this care on the neck and neckline, in downward movements, beginning to the neck to go to the chest.

This smoothing of the skin muscle of the neck goes in the direction of the fibers of this muscle. This is important not to upset the muscle fibers. By using this product every evenings, the skin regenerates herself and the wrinkles and fine lines between the breasts will fade.
