Glycation - skin ageing in fast motion

Combating glycation with carnosine: A targeted solution for radiant skin

Glycation, a natural process in which sugar reacts with proteins, can accelerate skin ageing. This biochemical reaction leads to the formation of advanced glycation end products (AGEs), which damage the skin's collagen and elastin. Symptoms include wrinkling, loss of elasticity, hyperpigmentation and an uneven skin texture.

To counteract the negative effects of glycation, a comprehensive skincare regimen rich in antioxidants such as vitamins C and E is essential. These antioxidants can neutralize free radicals and protect the skin from glycation damage. In addition, ingredients such as peptides and hyaluronic acid can stimulate collagen production, improve skin firmness and reduce the appearance of wrinkles.

Carnosine, a dipeptide that occurs naturally in the human body, has been shown to be an effective anti-glycation agent. It shows its effectiveness by reducing the formation of AGEs. It inhibits the reaction between sugars and proteins by acting as a scavenger of reactive carbonyl compounds involved in glycation. Through this inhibition of glycation, carnosine preserves the structural integrity of skin proteins, especially collagen and elastin, resulting in improved skin elasticity, a firmer skin texture and a reduction in wrinkles.

In addition, carnosine has antioxidant properties that help neutralize free radicals and protect the skin from oxidative stress. This comprehensive protective mechanism makes carnosine a promising active ingredient in skin care, especially for combating glycation and its negative effects on skin health.

A balanced diet also plays an important role in combating glycation. Reducing the consumption of sugar and refined carbohydrates can help minimize the formation of AGEs. Antioxidant-rich foods such as berries, green leafy vegetables and fish oil can support skin health and improve protection against glycation damage.

The negative effects of glycation on the skin can be effectively combated through holistic care, its consistent application, nutritional optimization and targeted treatments.

Carnosin Cream

One of the main causes of accelerated skin ageing is the so-called saccharification of the skin (glycation). Glycation deprives the skin of its elasticity and causes all signs of ageing to appear earlier. The active ingredient L-carnosine, also known as an anti-ageing peptide, can even rejuvenate cells that have already aged and reduces glycation of the skin by preventing collagen and elastin fibers from sticking together. Carnosine cream can also detoxify the skin and reduce redness. This exceptional skin care gives the skin a smooth, radiant and rejuvenated appearance.

Indication

For all demanding skin types

For intensive pre-aging

Active Ingredients

- Carnosine - active against glycation processes, anti-oxidative, smoothing, firming, cell rejuvenating
- Vitamin B3 (niacinamide) - regenerating, cell renewing, activates skin and cell metabolism
- Alpine flower ball extract - moisturizing, protective, soothing suppleness
- Sodium PCA - moisturizing, promotes the formation of the skin's own NMFs

Application

Apply morning and evening to cleansed and toned skin on the face, neck and décolleté. To optimize the effect, apply the New Skin Elixir beforehand.

Benefits

- Ultra-soft anti-aging care
- Intensive pre-aging care
- Silky-soft, refined skin texture

Couperose/Rosacea - Prevent and protect

Using the power of nature to achieve strong, resistant skin without redness and irritation

The French term couperose means “copper rose” or “copper fin”. It refers to dilatations of small, superficial blood vessels. They appear as characteristic, copper-red veins and indicate a weakness of the capillary vessel walls and connective tissue.

These dilated veins, also known as telangiectasias, occur in the skin diseases couperose and rosacea. They are usually most noticeable on the cheeks and around the nose.

Couperose is often hereditary. However, other influences such as sunbathing, negative environmental conditions, alcohol and other stimulants, high blood pressure or weak connective tissue can also cause it to develop.

Rosacea, medically acne rosacea, is a chronic inflammatory skin disease that mainly affects the face and initially occurs in episodes. It can develop into a systemic disease. It often resembles acne in appearance, but the pores are not clogged and the skin tends to be dry. Pimples caused by rosacea do not usually leave scars. Rosacea can also develop from couperose.

Continuous and consistent use of être belle Couperose Serum and être belle Couperose Cream can relieve sensitive skin prone to redness, efflorescence and telangiectasia, strengthen the fine capillaries and alleviate inflammatory processes.
